

"A Real teacher"

Wukhan

There are many teachers in schools, universities, education buildings and so on, but how are they good at their subjects? And what are the traits of character a real teacher should have? Everyone has their opinion about it.

I think, a real teacher is a smart, very educated person, who loves children.

First, he or she should be kind, but just, because if he wasn't be such teacher, children will hate him.

Second, ^{the} teacher should be even-tempered, because children can be very nervous, noisy, rude... If teacher is excellent person he or she will teach even troublemakers.

Third, the best teacher should be hard-working, because he or she works not just for money - for people.

I know many teachers, whose help their students, not only in education, but in life. They give a piece of advice, buy something and so on. Kindness - is the mainest thing in their job, too.

I like so much my class teacher. For me she's an ideal teacher. She's smart, skilled, respectable, reserved and very kind person. She always can give you a piece of advice for you. She never cries to us and other students, but she can be firm if we're naughty, but anyway we love her so much.

To my mind, it's a plus for her that she's so young and beautiful.

My class often goes with her somewhere. She likes to arrange different walkings. She often offers some trips to us. We've already been at concerts, in bowling club, museums, cinema. Also, she's funny and understanding.

In my opinion, we're lucky with her.

If you want to be a teacher, you should learn how to get on with people of different ages, be patient, well-educated and punctual. Results will come fastly - you'll be loved and respected.
